Love Relationships

Part 1

AUTHOR'S INTRODUCTION

I have been passionately studying numerology since 1980, completely fascinated and magnetized to the relationship between one's numbers and one's life. There is, indisputably, a divine connection between our natal data [full birth names and birth date] and our life. What power exists that is so vastly intelligent it can create destinies for each of us, as well as integrate those destinies with everyone we interact with in life for our entire life, is far beyond my limited capacity to understand. Yet, my experience and research have taught me it is so. Personally, this power is God. Regardless of what label we give such a power, the fact remains that we all have a destiny and a blueprint of our lives that can be read once we understand the keys and codes to unlock their secrets. Unbelievable? Perhaps. True? Bank on it.

My journey into the mysteries of numbers began with a quest to discover why some relationships were great, others good, some not; others horrible. That thirty year search, enormously fruitful and revealing, is the basis of this book which will illustrate, through The King's Numerology[™] system, how to determine the secrets of your life, loves and relationships in a matter of minutes.

For example, do you truly know what motivates and drives you, your spouse, children, partner, friends? What do they want out of life? Can you help make them happy? Can they help make you happy? Can the two of you find harmony, fulfillment, love and peace in life? What are your assets and liabilities? Those of your family, friends and partners? Will there be attraction between you and another person? Will you be attracted to them but they not to you? Will they be attracted to you but you not attracted to them? Will there be love between the two of you or something else? In effect, what are the keys and codes to finding love?

This book will show you the secret formulas to determine all this and much more. This research is unique, and doesn't exist anywhere else. Although results cannot be guaranteed because there are no guarantees in life, the research findings contained in this work have proven themselves to be quite accurate, and it would be inappropriate for this information not to be shared with others.

As the esteemed Dr. Albert Einstein noted:

The right to search for truth and to publish and teach what one holds to be true . . . implies also a duty; one must not conceal any part of what one has recognized to be true.

Frankly, there are far too many unhappy, unfulfilling and short-lived relationships in today's world, not to mention the skyrocketing number of divorces which have such a negative impact upon people's lives, especially the lives of children. The information in this book offers powerful and unique knowledge which can definitely assist people in building strong and meaningful relationships and in finding a person who is truly compatible as a life partner. The method of discovering how to generate excellent relationships which this book teaches may be unorthodox but that's only because it is new. One day, the hope is it will be commonplace, and the reality of broken and unhappy relationships will be more the exception than the rule.

Journeys are often initiated by a seminal event, some catalyst that fires the engines of action. Although I had been studying numerology for decades and discovering many relationship secrets based solely on numbers, I had not felt any definitive impetus to share such truths with the world until it happened. "It" was a situation in which a delightful family had been in emotional distress for nearly two decades because of a simple lack of understanding numbers and their relationship to life. The son's desires were marked by the number Seven (7), the most internal and private of all energies, reflecting an intrinsic need to be private and solitary. The mother's life featured the number 8 – the most external and social of all energies. Seven and Eight are opposites.

Although the mother was loving, as her son grew she kept encouraging him to be more social and talkative, a life style she embraced but which was directly opposed to his deepest desires, causing him extreme stress. The pain between the mother and son because of this clashing of their life's numbers was obvious and unfortunate. When the numeric reality of their lives was revealed, a light bulb went off. The mother realized the errors in her method of raising her son. She changed. The son's face lit up like a flash of light at midnight. He was finally understood. Peace at last. Yet, it was a painful decades long situation that could have been avoided if the numbers associated with each person's life had been known. After this event, I could wait no more. The discomfort for me was painful but catalyzing. In that moment I felt an inexorable compulsion and duty to share the truths I've learned in hopes that such knowledge will help others lead more loving, harmonious and fulfilling lives.

There are two parts to this book. Part 1 is the entire book Your Love Numbers – Discovering the Secrets of Your Life, Loves and Relationships. It was previously published as The 5 Minute Lover. Your Love Numbers is still currently available as a single title.

However, as my numerology work, writings and business have expanded, I have realized the importance of placing all my numerology books under The King's Book of Numerology series, insuring they fall under the aegis of one common brand – The King's Numerology™.

Part 2 of this work, "Case Studies," is brand new. It features multiple case studies of actual relationships and their numbers. This has been done so the reader can see exactly what makes great relationships great and others not so great from a numeric point of view. Hopefully, these case studies will encourage people to base their relationships, especially their marriages, on numbers, which are actually labels for energy fields, thus increasing the number of fulfilling, harmonious and happy marriages rather than the immense number of unhappy, unfulfilling and inharmonious marriages and relationships so prevalent in today's world, not to mention the staggering number of divorces. If happier marriages exist, happier family environments and happier children can exist, too. And that's the goal – to create better unions so people can have better lives, better relationships, better marriages. This can be done using numerology – the science of numeric coding, believe it or not. I sincerely hope you not only believe in this work but come to understand and apply its truths in order to enhance and beautify your own life and the lives of others.

With warm regards for the benefit and happiness of all in their relationships,

Richard Andrew King

PART 2 – PREFACE: CASE STUDIES

There are three sections to this Part 2 of KBN6.

Section 1. Common Marriages Rated As Excellent

Section 2. Celebrity Marriages & Divorces

Section 3. Hollywood's Enduring Marriages

Section 1 is comprised of ten case studies featuring actual marriages of common individuals which have been given an excellent rating by The King's Numerology™. They are the gold standard of relationships and reveal what is possible in marriages or partnerships. In a few charts, first names have been changed to protect people's privacy but the numbers have not changed.

How is an excellent rating generated? All relationships are defined by the quality and quantity of Mutual Energetic Resonance (MER) between the partners. This is the key. Simply stated, the greater the quality and quantity of mutual energetic resonance between people, the higher the degree of excellence. The converse is also true. The lower the degree of mutual energetic resonance and its quality and quantity, the lower the relationship rating.

Section 2 contains five case studies of celebrity marriages which have ended in divorce. The reason these are being featured is simply to contrast the numbers of their Match & Mix relationship charts with those of Section 1. The numeric comparison is stunning and very different from the "excellent-rated" marriages. Numerically, it is obvious why these marriages failed. They just did not possess enough quality and quantity of energetic glue to keep them together.

Section 3 includes five case studies of Hollywood marriages that endured for decades. Again, these are illustrated to show the contrast of successful marriages versus unsuccessful ones. And what is clearly evident is that these five enduring marriages have the same, or nearly the same, degree and type of energetic connections as those featured in Section 1, thus proving the reality and worthiness of numeric association as it relates to the quality of relationships and marriages.

Why use celebrities in Sections 2 and 3? Because everyone knows celebrities. They are in and of the public domain. Their histories, lives, relationships and marriages are always on public, even global, display. There's no guess work when comparing what is excellent and what is not when analyzing, categorizing and evaluating their marriages. Whether their relationships are poor, great, enduring or not, we can learn from them and increase the possibility of marital happiness going forward for everyone. Celebrities are just people. Their marriages beat to the same numeric rhythms and patterns of other marriages, whether those marriages succeed or fail.

Let it be known that there are absolutely no judgements in these assessments. Neither are these comparisons intended nor designed to extol or defame any individuals. The entire purpose of revealing and sharing this knowledge is to corroborate the science of numeric coding, i.e., numerology, in its ability to generate and/or understand relationships and marriages and why some are great, some average and others short-lived and thereby create a paradigm of marital success for others to follow.

Why This Works

At its core, life is energy. Likewise, each of us is energy. Numbers are simply labels for the composite energies that define and describe us. Relationships of any kind are admixtures of the combined energies of the partners involved. Like us, they can also be defined by numbers.

So let's now take a look at the numeric reality of relationships and, hopefully, learn from them and apply their truths with the goal of generating and understanding the science that defines and describes our loves, relationships, marriages and partnerships.
